

Junior Communication Specialist

Anncy, France | Communication | End of study internship

CIXI is an automotive start-up company. Our mission is to develop a new type of electric vehicle combining the benefits of a car and those of a bicycle, allowing people to be active during their daily trips and reduce their environmental footprint.

As Junior Communication Specialist you will take part in developing and implementing the communication strategy in line with CIXI's strategy and major objectives: brand development, product definition, and community growth.

Your missions:

- Work closely with Marketing and Design to brainstorm content ideas.
- Support the definition and conceptualization of different communications missions
- Create and publish high-quality content for the company website, social media, press, and newsletters
- Manage community interactions in support of Marketing and Design research
- Adhere and improve the company's style guide, ensuring the production of error-free copies

Your profile:

- You are enrolled in a Master program in Communication or equivalent
- You have a good level of English and French
- Excellent written and verbal communication skills
- You have a strategic and creative mindset
- Meticulous attention to detail
- You are a natural storyteller
- You can demonstrate autonomy while being a dynamic team player
- You have a portfolio/examples of your work available for review (mandatory)

At CIXI we value engagement, intellectual honesty, and kindness. We are currently a team of 20+ people, and each of us is an important pillar for the creation of the Hyfit. There is a possibility to continue with us as a full-time employee after the internship.

Does this speak to you?

Send us your resume, a personalized cover letter and your portfolio at jobs@cixi.life, we will get back to you soon!
